Response to Intervention: A Decision-Making Framework

Response to Intervention (RTI) presents a philosophy of diagnosis and prescription. Its purpose is to ensure the success of every student, in every classroom. RTI fosters screening, action on the data, fidelity and documentation within a technology-rich environment. The centerpiece of RTI is its tiered model of intervention. In this workshop, participants explore three distinct levels of instructional approaches that address student needs: Tier 1, Prevention, Tier 2, Intervention, and Tier 3, Intense Attention. Utilizing data-driven decisions, on going, informative assessments and a repertoire of best practices and differentiated instruction, Tier 1 addresses all students and often accommodates, 80-85% of student needs. Addressing 10-15% of identified students, Tier 2 focuses on timely intervention strategies through flexible skill groupings and revisits, reviews, re-teaches and revises target skill sets in literacy and math. Tier 3, consists of planned and customized interventions that target 3-5% of identified students and provides laser beam intensity through special education services, in addition to quality classroom instruction

- Tier 1-Prevention All Day, All Students
- Tier 2-Intervention with Flexible Skill Groups
- Tier 3-Intense Attention and Individual Education Plans
